

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

MICHAEL COGHLAN is recognized internationally as an expert in the implementation of synchronous learning environments. He is a specialist in synchronous facilitation and the use of online voice technologies, and was part of the Australian Flexible Learning Framework's research team, Beyond Text (2005), and Media on the Move (2006). He is an e-Learning facilitator with TAFE South Australia. Michael is also co-founder of the Webheads community for like-minded ESL/EFL students and teachers.

JOHN COLLUICK Ph.D. is an international education manager with Promethean in the UK. He has a special interest in the use of interactive whiteboard and wireless learning technologies and has worked in the educational technology industry for a number of years. A graduate of Sussex University, he taught at Hokkaido and Waseda universities in Japan for over ten years.

DARREN ELLIOTT began teaching in Japan in 1999, and has since gained an MA in English Language Teaching and DELTA at Nottingham Trent University. His dissertation focused on teacher development in times of change. He has taught at Universities in both the UK and Japan and currently works for Nanzan University.

STEVE MCCARTY has been a regular faculty member in Japan since 1985, currently a Professor at Osaka Jogakuin College. He has been re-elected President of the World Association for Online Education every two years since 1998. His research areas include Asian studies, bilingualism, and e-Learning. He teaches content-based English as a Foreign Language courses, such as Bilingual Education and Computer Communication, and regularly lectures for the government to foreign technical trainees on Japanese People and Society. Since 1997 his Website of online publications has maintained a 4-star rating, very useful for research, from the Asian Studies WWW Virtual Library. He also maintains a mobile phone Website (since 2000), two podcasting blogs, and the YouTube Educational Group.

JUDY NOGUCHI works for Mukogawa Women's University in Japan. She specializes in teaching ESP (English for Specific Purposes) courses to students majoring in science and technology at Japanese universities. She is also involved in research and materials development for e-learning environments and JSP (Japanese for Specific Purposes). She has an M.Ed. in TESL from Temple University Japan and a Ph.D. in Applied Linguistics from the University of Birmingham.

THOMAS ROBB is Professor of English Language at Kyoto Sangyo University in Japan. His current primary focus is on enhancing the functionality of Moodle for language learning. He has been president of JALT, chair of the TESOL CALL Interest Section, and is currently president of PacCALL. He received both his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from The University of Hawai'i (Manoa).

WINIFRED SHIRAISHI lectures at Tama University, SGS studies with a focus on teaching composition skills to English as Second Language Learners. She has taught in both the U.S. and Japan for over fifteen years at the junior high school, high school, and university levels. Her current research focuses on teaching students independent research through critical analysis of media sources.

RUSSELL STANNARD is Principal Lecturer at the University of Westminster in the UK. A previous director of studies of International House Centre in Seville, he is currently the course leader of the M.Sc. in Interactive Multimedia. He also teaches on courses in ICT and English for Academic Purposes as well as running the Media and Technology module on the MA TESOL. His main research interests are in screen recorder software for student feedback.

MASAKO TERUI is a Ph.D. student in the Graduate School of Language and Culture at Osaka University. Her research focuses on ESP-based approaches, corpus linguistics, and EIL (English as an International Language) and she does translation in business areas related to science and technology. She received her M.A. from Osaka University in 2008. She also teaches part-time at Kinki University and Mukogawa Women's University, where she has been involved in materials development for e-learning.

MICHAEL THOMAS Ph.D. is Associate Professor at Nagoya University of Commerce & Business in Japan. He is editor of Handbook of Research on Web 2.0 and Second Language Learning (IGI Global Reference, 2009) and author of The Reception of Derrida: Translation and Transformation (Palgrave, 2006). He is currently co-editing two books, Diversity in Call (with Glenn Stockwell) and Interactive Whiteboards for Education and Training (with Euline Cutrim Schmid). He is a member of the JALT CALL committee and organizer of the Wireless Ready symposium series <<http://wirelessready.nucba.ac.jp>>.